

Old Man Ritter Disinherited Two of His Children.

Left an Estate Valued at a Quarter of a Million.

His St. Louis Daughter and a Son Got Only $5 Each.

Suit Has Been Begun to Break the Will—The Contestants Allege That Their Brother Paul Used Undue Influence Against Them.

A suit recently filed at Carthage, Ill., by Mrs. Eleanor Lohman, living at 1304 North Tenth street this city, and her brother, George A. Ritter, a lawyer of Nauvoo, Ill., to contest the will of their father, George Ritter, brings to light a queer story of a quarrel between the children of a man who died in 1874, leaving an estate which was valued at $250,000, before he made over some of his property to a married daughter, shortly prior to his death. He was 72 years old, and from March to December he suffered terrible agonies from cancer on his jaw and neck.

He kept his son, George A. Ritter, and his daughter, Mrs. Lohman, at a distance for many years before his death, and repudiated entire confidence in his son Paul. The plaintiffs allege that Paul prevented a reconciliation by stopping communication between them, and that he and his wife, Mrs. Lohman, in talking about the suit, said that in the early 70's she and her husband lived at Nauvoo. Her father found fault with her husband because he was given to drink, and the old man wanted her to leave Lohman. She would not, but came to St. Louis with him.

WHY HE DIDN'T LIKE GEORGE.

About 1876, she said, her brother, George A. Ritter, was practicing law in St. Louis, and her father wished to use the city of Nauvoo for $10,000 due on certain bonds. It was necessary for her father to sue in the name of his son George A., and when judgment was recovered, George A. kept the amount paid him by her father. She thought his son should give the money to him. The son based his title on the fact that he and his father brought the suit. This difference caused an estrangement, and the old gentleman took his revenge by making his will. Ritter after wards moved to Nauvoo, but his father would not recognize him.

Mrs. Lohman says Paul was down at the heels in 1872, and he came to live with her in St. Louis. After her husband's death, friends induced him to go to his father in Nauvoo and try to bring about a reunion of the family. Ritter took him to his father's home, but the old gentleman would not see him. Mrs. Lohman said that the old gentleman was well and that she should write him by letter. She did write and her letters were returned.

At that time her married sister, Mrs. D. W. Taintor, in her husband and children, Flossie, George, Paul and Bert, were living in the old family home with Mr. Ritter, but Paul got married, took his wife to the parental roof tree and the Taintors moved to Kansas City.

LIBERAL TO THE OTHERS.

Although Mrs. Lohman had no correspondence with her father, she was not in the dark about his health and his affairs. She learned that he had cancer and she learned that on Sept. 27, 1874, he transferred to Mr. and Mrs. Taintor, of Carthage, Ill., several valuable pieces of property in Kansas City, and to their son, Paul, a farm near Carthage, Ill. Mrs. Lohman says that on Dec. 7 she received a brief letter from her brother Paul. It was to this effect:

"Father died at 7:30 a. m. She was not at home at once, but she went to Nauvoo without delay. She hastened to the home of her childhood, but she says she was not allowed by her brother or Paul to stay over night, and she put up at a hotel. She said that her brother Paul attended the funeral and returned to St. Louis.

"The day the old man died, Mrs. Lohman says that her brother, George A. Ritter, the Nauvoo lawyer, received a postal card from Paul. It was to this effect:

"Father died at 7:30 a. m. You may have a last look at him, but it was his dying wish that you should not see him. George A. Ritter saw his father's body and attended the funeral.

"In a few days that will leave everything to Paul, except $5 to Mr. Lohman and the same to me. I expect to be filed for probate. It was dated Sept. 18, eight days prior to the transfer of the Kansas City property to the Taintors.

Mrs. Lohman and her brother George once decided to break the will. Mrs. Lohman says her father was an old miser, eccentric and childish in his last days, and under the shadow of his eccentricity Paul, a part of the $250,000 estate in a block of 156 shares of Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe stock.

Miners Discussing The Adviseability of a Strike—Notes.

The Belleville district miners appear to be in doubt as to the advisability of inaugurating a strike, as their brethren from the Glen Carbon district are urging them to do. Some of the leaders claim that the moment is opportune for a strike, while others are of the opinion that a strike would be a waste of money, and that there will be no doubt be an animated discussion at their meeting to decide the matter, which is to be held Wednesday.

THE JUDGES.

The Number St. Louis Needs for Her Circuit Courts.

Text of the Bill to Be Laid Before the Legislators.

TWO JUDGES NECESSARY FOR THE CRIMINAL COURT.

The Measure Drafted by Mr. Drabell to Be Introduced in the House—Another Picture-Hanging Episode—The Day's Proceedings.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 21.—Representative Drabell, of St. Louis, has brought up two more bills covering the needed increases in the number of Circuit and Criminal Judges in the city of St. Louis, one of which, the criminal bill, was drafted by himself. The Circuit Court bill was drawn by Attorney Charles B. Stark, and provides, as at present, that the number will be amended to read seven before the bill is introduced. The Criminal Court bill reads as follows:

Sec. 1. From and after the taking effect of this act, the Circuit Court of the city of St. Louis shall be composed of eight judges.

Sec. 2. Immediately upon the taking effect of this act the Governor shall appoint three judges of said Circuit Court, for a term ending on the first day of December, 1896, and the said additional judges hereby provided for shall possess the same qualifications and shall receive the same compensation, and from the same source, as the present judges of the court.

Sec. 3. At the general election, held in said city in November, 1896, three other judges of the Circuit Court shall be elected for terms of six years, and one for a term of two years, and thereafter their successors shall be elected for terms of six years.

Sec. 4. After every official census hereafter taken in said city of St. Louis, of the inhabitants thereof, the Circuit Court of the city of St. Louis shall be composed of such number of judges as will be equal to one for each 60,000 inhabitants, or fractional part thereof over 30,000.

Sec. 5. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

Sec. 6. The existing judges in the administration of justice in said Circuit Court, caused by the accumulation of business, constitutes an emergency within the meaning of the constitution, and it is therefore enacted that this act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Mr. Drabell supports the appointment feature on the ground of economy, and says that it is too long to wait until the next election after the census is taken, to find out how many judges St. Louis is entitled to by reason of increase in her population; that the necessity of the situation demands an immediate increase in the number of judges of both Circuit and Criminal Courts.

The Criminal Court bill was framed by Mr. Drabell after consultation with a number of members of the bar who are interested in this feature of legislation. It is as follows:

Sec. 1. From and after the taking effect of this act, the St. Louis Criminal Court shall be composed of two judges.

Sec. 2. Each of the judges shall sit separately, for the trial of causes and the transaction of business in special term. They may sit in the general term for the purpose of making their rules of court and for the transaction of such other business as may be provided by law, at such times as they may determine, and the court shall be reviewed by order, decision or proceeding of the court in special term.

Sec. 3. Immediately on the taking effect of this act, the Circuit Court shall be composed of eight judges, for a term ending on the first day of December, 1896, who shall possess the same qualifications and receive the same compensation, and from the same source, as the present judges of said court.

Sec. 4. At the general election held in the city of St. Louis in November, 1896, one of the judges of said court shall be elected for a term of two years, and one for a term of six years, and thereafter their successors shall be elected for terms of six years.

Sec. 5. After every official census taken in said city of St. Louis, of the inhabitants thereof, the St. Louis Criminal Court shall be composed of such number of judges as will be equal to one for each 20,000 inhabitants, or fractional part thereof over 10,000.

Sec. 6. All acts or parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed.

Sec. 7. The existing judges in the administration of justice in said St. Louis Criminal Court, caused by the accumulation of cases therein, and the emergency within the meaning of the constitution, and it is therefore enacted that this act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Of the salaries of Circuit and Criminal Court Judges in St. Louis, $2,000 are paid by the State and $3,000 by the city, to each judge.

It is very evident that the Republicans of the House are ready for another exploit in picture-hanging. Speaker Russell has given an intimation of his purpose to offer a resolution providing for the removal of Benton's picture from the wall of the Speaker's chair and replace it with that of Lyon. This suggestion was met by the announcement of the discovery that the place where Benton himself had it hanging, and which it occupied for thirty years, was on the wall of the House in the northeast corner, and the point was made that if the picture of Benton was placed in the front of the House, the center of the front of the House would be the place for the largest picture in the building, and that picture would be that of Benton. It is well understood that Speaker Russell is not improving his standing with the G. A. R. men of the House by his course in the picture episode. House by his course in the picture episode. Most of the members and others who went on the trip to the State Capitol yesterday morning and the greater portion of them consumed their hours of leisure in the recuperation of yesterday's exertions and in doctoring colds. They have but little to say about the discomfited trip, which was not in any wise due to the wilful neglect of the official hosts; and nearly all express the opinion that the new State House has secured full value in the new State House of the State University.
